

SOUTH CAROLINA CHILDREN'S

FOSTER CARE REVIEW BOARD

2010-2011

ANNUAL REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS

EXPEDITING PERMANENCY

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

On behalf of the State Board of Directors, I am pleased to present this report of the activities and accomplishments of the 42 local Foster Care Review Boards during fiscal year 2010-2011. The information provided in this report clearly captures the importance of independent review and the value of committed volunteers.

The State Board, staff and local review board volunteers are especially grateful to members of the South Carolina General Assembly for the passage of Senate Bill 1172 in 2010. These substantial revisions aimed at reshaping day-to-day practice in child abuse and neglect cases also provide valuable tools for expediting permanence.

In our adult world weeks, months and years seem to fly by. But to children in foster care, who are waiting to return home or to be adopted, time moves at a snail's pace. Those passing days, weeks, months and years are their childhoods, their futures. The ticking clock is the gauge which can no longer be ignored, if we are serious about timely permanent homes for our children in foster care.

The Foster Care Review Board looks forward to continued efforts with our community partners to promote safe, permanent homes for children in foster care. As we go forth, may we all remain mindful and attentive to the urgent ticking of the clock.

Data contained in this Annual Report represents children reported by the South Carolina Department of Social Services, who remain in foster care at least four consecutive months and are reviewed by the South Carolina Children's Foster Care Review Board.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

In order for a state social service system to receive federal matching funds for its foster care program, the state must have a “case review system.” Federal law defines a case review system as a procedure for assuring that (1) each child has a case plan and (2) the status of each child is reviewed at least every six months by either a court or an administrative review. In South Carolina, the Children’s Foster Care Review Board is the state agency statutorily charged with providing the federally mandated case review system.

At case reviews Review Board members, who are community volunteers nominated by their local legislative delegation and appointed by the Governor, gather information from and meet with the Department of Social Services’ Case Manager, parents/legal guardians, Guardian ad Litem, child (10 or older), foster parents, and any interested party (e.g. counselor, teacher). The Review Board determines the progress being made toward returning the child to his or her parents, or if that is not possible, whether DSS is making maximum efforts toward adoption. The Board then meets privately to discuss case-specific information and to formulate its recommendation. The Board presents its recommendation and any areas of concern to the persons who attended the review.

Review Board coordinators, who are employees of the Foster Care Review Board, directly support each of the 42, five-member Review Boards by preparing information prior to the review, documenting information at the review, and producing the Boards’ recommendation after the review. The Board’s recommendation is sent to the Family Court, DSS, and the Guardian ad Litem. Once a child’s case is reviewed, Review Board members and staff advocate to address case-specific concerns that create barriers to permanency for a particular child. In addition to that, the data collected at reviews is compiled and utilized to identify trends within the system that unnecessarily delay returning children home or delay adoptions for those children who cannot return home. Having an independent entity collect and review this information is a critical check and balance to ensure the safety and well-being of some of South Carolina’s most vulnerable children.

VISION

South Carolina will make child well-being a top priority by assuring safe, permanent families for all children in foster care.

MISSION

The mission of the South Carolina Children's Foster Care Review Board is to provide external accountability for the foster care system and to advocate on behalf of children in foster care.

FOSTER CARE LEGAL FRAMEWORK

RECOMMENDATION

The South Carolina Children’s Foster Care Review Board is supported by a seven-member State Board of Directors. The State Board meets quarterly and is responsible for reviewing and coordinating the activities of local review boards and making recommendations in an Annual Report to the Governor and General Assembly. The seven members are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate.

Each year, the State Board of Directors for the Children’s Foster Care Review Board makes recommendations to the Governor and the General Assembly regarding policies, procedures and systemic deficiencies impacting children in foster care.

This year, the State Board recommends that stakeholders in the child welfare system fully utilize the statutory changes in Senate Bill 1172 to prevent children from lingering in foster care and to expedite and increase adoptions in South Carolina. The following are some highlights of the changes.

SENATE BILL 1172

- A parent should not be given more than one year to complete the placement plan unless that parent has demonstrated “due diligence” and a commitment to correcting the conditions warranting the removal.
- A parent must actually remedy the condition(s) that caused the removal, instead of merely completing or substantially completing treatment objectives of a placement plan, before a child is returned to the home.
- Adoption can be expedited for children who have been victims of severe abuse and neglect by foregoing reasonable efforts at reunification, which simply means not offering treatment services to a parent.
- The Department of Social Services must file for termination of parental rights at the merits hearing if evidence shows aggravated circumstances, such as severe and/or repeated abuse and/or neglect, sexual abuse, torture or abandonment, unless there are compelling reasons that is not in the child’s best interest.

2010 ACCOMPLISHMENTS

PEOPLE POWER

It has been said that an organization is only as good at its people. How true! That is especially true at the Foster Care Review Board where our 170 volunteers are our biggest asset. Review board volunteers give freely of their time, talents and resources, and utilize their connections within their communities to promote timely permanent homes for children and strengthen the foster care system. Being keenly aware of the ticking of the clock, local review board members collectively maintain a sense of urgency for each child reviewed.

*"It is easy to make a buck.
It's a lot
tougher to make a difference."

SUMMARY OF REVIEWS

8,130

The Review Board tracks and monitors ongoing, comparative data related to children in foster care in order to gain a better understanding of the trends impacting the system, as well as future implications related to each child reviewed by local review boards.

The following sections provide information from data collected from the Department of Social Services, as well as from child-specific reviews by local review boards.

During calendar year 2010, local review boards held 434 local review board meetings, completing 8,130 case reviews for 4,986 children in foster care. These numbers represent a slight decrease over previous years.

Data regarding entry into foster care for 3,171 children was received from the Department of Social Services (DSS) and entered in the Review Board data management system during calendar year 2010. Twenty-four percent of these (24%), or 751, children had a previous entry into foster care. Local review boards held first reviews for 1,514 children, and 1,657 children left foster care prior to a case review.

AREAS OF CONCERN

12,153

The monthly review process allows local review boards to identify system concerns that are barriers to permanence for children in foster care. These system deficiencies, or Areas of Concern, are defined as violations of law or policy. In 2010, local review boards identified 12,153 areas of concern.

No timely merits hearing was the most frequently noted legal concern in 2010 (841), followed by a lack of timely permanency planning hearings (838). The most frequently identified program area of concern, inappropriate and incomplete case planning, accounted for 33% (3,955) of all Areas of Concern. Deficiencies in case planning create a significant barrier to permanence for children in foster care.

ENTERING FOSTER CARE

The South Carolina Department of Social Services reported that 3,171 children entered the foster care system between January 1, 2010 and December 31, 2010. 1,657 of these children returned home prior to being reviewed by local review boards, while 1,514 children were reviewed by local review boards.

The primary reasons reported for the 1,514 children reviewed entering foster care were neglect (48%), physical or sexual abuse (27%) and drug exposure (15%). The remaining 10% entered foster care due to abandonment, voluntary placement, dependency, or juvenile offense.

REENTERING FOSTER CARE

Of the 3,171 children reported to have entered foster care in 2010, 24%, or 751, had at least one previous entry into foster care. Forty-four percent (44%) returned to foster care from the home of a parent; 44% from the home of a relative; and less than 5% returned to foster care from an adoptive home.

The Review Board defines any prior entry into foster care a reentry, regardless of the length of stay or time between foster care placements. The Department of Social Services and the federal government define reentries into foster care according to a specific time period between foster care placements (less than 12 months). The Review Board captures and reports on every entry into foster care because every out of home placement significantly impacts a child. For children who have been abused and neglected, the trauma of even one placement into a foster home or group home can have a negative impact on their overall development and jeopardize their ability to become healthy and well-adjusted adults. Coming in and out of foster care, or moving repeatedly from home to home, can be devastating for a child.

LEAVING FOSTER CARE

The Department of Social Services (DSS) reported that 3,563 children left the foster care system in 2010. Of the 3,563 children leaving foster care, local review boards reviewed 2,182 children prior to their leaving foster care. The remaining children left foster care prior to a case review.

Permanent, legal homes for children are defined as legal custody with a parent or a consummated adoption. In 2010, 66% of children reviewed left to the custody of a parent or had a finalized adoption. The following table summarizes data for all children leaving foster care in 2010.

REMAINING IN CARE

As of June 30, 2011, there were 4,126 children in foster care, as reported to the Review Board by the Department of Social Services. Of these, 51% (2,096 children) have been in the foster care system for 17 continuous months or longer for their most recent foster care entry.

LEGALLY FREE:

Of these children remaining in care 17 months or longer, 39% (809) are currently legally free for adoption. The average length of time in care for these children is five years.

CURRENT AGE AS OF JUNE 30, 2011

NOT LEGALLY FREE:

Of children remaining in care 17 months or longer, 61% (1,287) are not legally free for adoption. The average length of time in care for these children is 2.8 years. Forty-six percent (46%) of those children have a plan of Termination of Parental Rights/Adoption and 34% have no current plan or a plan of Another Planned Permanent Living Arrangement at the most recent review.

NOT LEGALLY FREE	NUMBER	PERCENT
AGENCY PLAN AT LAST REVIEW	1,287	61%

Termination of Parental Rights/Adoption	588	46%
Another Planned Permanent Living Arrangement	331	26%
Reunification	224	17%
No Current Case Plan	103	8%
Relative Custody	41	3%

ADOPTIONS

593

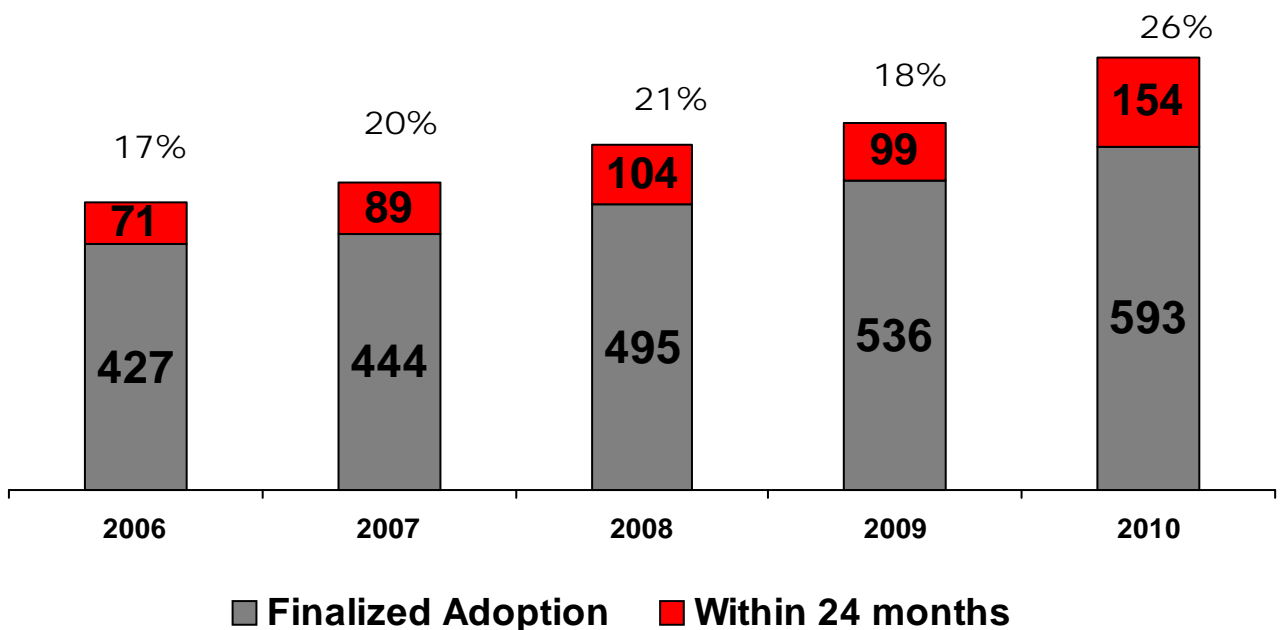

The Department of Social Services reported a record-number of finalized adoptions during calendar year 2010. Of the children who left foster care in 2010, 27% (593) had finalized adoptions, twenty-six percent (154) of these adoptions were completed within the federal standard of 24 months, an eight point percentage increase over 2009.

The average length of time a child spends in foster care before a finalized adoption also decreased slightly to an average of 38 months, or 3.1 years. This is 14 months longer than the federal standard of 24 months.

The average age at adoption was 6.3 years, and in 2010 adoptions were finalized for 50 children age 13 and older. Teen adoptions account for less than 10% of all finalized adoptions, while 20% of children in foster care who are legally free are 10 years of age or older. Positive permanency for this population of young people should be a priority for the child welfare system.

SC HEART GALLERY

"A good snapshot stops a moment from running away."

Eudora Welty (1909 - 2001)

A photograph captures a moment in time. For children in foster care who are waiting for adoption, a photograph can be the starting point to finding their forever family. A national network of Heart Galleries has embraced this singular mission of using the power of photography to build families for children lingering in foster care.

Since 2005, the South Carolina Heart Gallery has exhibited photographs of waiting children in public venues and online. Local artists have donated their time and talent to capture the spirit of each child, and exhibit space has been provided by restaurants, libraries, art galleries, churches, hospitals, and other businesses. Although 43% of featured children have found families, there is much more to be done.

Over 700 children in foster care in South Carolina are waiting for an adoptive family to be identified. For more information about the South Carolina Heart Gallery, please call 803-734-2595, or visit <http://www.scheartgallery.org>.

OUTCOMES BY COUNTY

The following table compares 2010 Review Board data for South Carolina's 46 counties for children reviewed, children entering/reentering, children leaving care, and permanency outcomes. Permanency is defined as a child returned to a parent or having a finalized adoption. The majority of children who did not achieve permanency either turned 18 or were emancipated.

For children entering and leaving care, these numbers reflect all children reported to the Foster Care Review Board by the Department of Social Services. They include children that were reviewed and children that DSS reported leaving care prior to a review being held.

BARRIERS BY COUNTY

The Foster Care Review Board is statutorily mandated to report on deficiencies in the child welfare system. One tool for measuring deficiencies are areas of concern, defined as violations of law and/or policy, that are identified during the review of a child's case. In 2010, the Review Board analyzed data collected for areas of concern and determined that nearly half of the individual areas of concern reported each represented less than 1% of all areas of concern. The definitions and categories for all areas of concern were reduced to more accurately capture those deficiencies that directly impact permanency outcomes for children in foster care.

The following table summarizes data collected during reviews held in calendar year 2010. The data compares individual counties and not previous year's data.
